Gave Pair Ride, Walked Himself

Here's a story of a 'Good Samaritan'!
Ralph McQuade, S. Clinton-st., an employee of The Herald office, returning from Lancaster at about midnight Tuesday stopped the Ford roadster he was driving to give two men a ride toward Amanda. After riding a short way the men, between 24 and 27 years of age, asked McQuade if he had any money. The reply was "No". McQuade was ordered to leave the automobile promptly, which he did more promptly.

The pair drove away, and there was the former driver of the car, on the highway bound for home at midnight. He walked about two miles into Amanda and fortunately got a ride to this city.

The Ford was found early Wednesday near the Marion greenhouse on the Lancaster-pk with all the wiring burned.

OHIO VILLAGE IS ISOLATED

An Epidemic of Scarlet Fever Near Fremont Results In Closed School.

FREMONT, O., Feb. 11.—Discovery of an epidemic of scarlet fever while an examination was being conducted for small pox, today resulted in the almost complete isolation of the village of Green Springs, a health resort of 500 population, four miles southeast of here.

Dr. O. H. Thomas, Sandusky-to health commissioner, who discovered the scarlet fever while examining students in the Green Creek township school, was in the village today, conferring with officials as to the advisability of compelling the inoculation of every resident in the community.

The school, which it attended by about 300 students, was closed for a two-week period at a special meeting of the Green Creek township board of education last night.

All public meetings also have been called off. The two-day conference of the Farmers' institute, scheduled for today, was postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Thomas discovered the existence of scarlet fever in the community when he questioned a student he was examining for traces of small pox yesterday. Six cases of the fever were found among the pupils attending the school in an investigation which followed.

See Mack Parrett, Jr., now and tell him you will be there next Tuesday.

DRYS PLAN OHIO RALLY

State-Wide Meet In April For Education Student Program Is Planned.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 11.—All dry organizations of Ohio began marshalling their forces today for a state-wide rally here April 13 and 14 to map out plans for an educational program among high school students.

The Anti-saloon league which instigated the rally at the annual meeting of the board of trustees yesterday, re-elected Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college, New Concord, president of the organization.

S. P. McNaught of Columbus, superintendent, and Homer C. Selby, of Portsmouth, vice president, were also re-named. New officers elected were F. B. Lamb, secretary, and W. S. Hutchinson, treasurer.

The principal address at the meeting was delivered by F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-saloon League of America. McBride declared that a "red-blooded American can never submit to a bootlegger's government and Uncle Sam will never retreat on the 18th amendment."

FIRE LOSS $50

About $50 damage was done at the home of E. R. Jennings, west of Williamsport on the New Holland-pk when fire was discovered in the attic, Wednesday. Employees of the state highway department came along just as a Mrs. Wells who has been staying there, went to summon help.

World Famous Inventor Observes 84th Birthday

PORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11.—Thomas A. Edison, world famous inventor, whose eighty-fourth birthday was celebrated here today by the formal dedication of a bridge spanning the Caloosahatchee river, has not been feeling any too well of late. His condition, however, is in no sense serious but he finds he must carefully guard his health and conserve his energy.

An indefatigable worker, Mr. Edison has been forced to cut his working hours to ten and twelve hours a day. A year ago he devoted fully fourteen hours a day to work. Time was when he worked sixteen hours a day, and even longer.

ON MILK DIET
Mr. Edison is afflicted with a rather weak stomach. For the past six years he has been on a milk diet. He has been subsisting on a glass of milk every two hours and has abstained from meat and vegetables. His milk is heated to a certain temperature.

It is understood on good authority that last Thursday the eminent surgeon and dietician, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, superintendent of a Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium called on Mr. Edison at Fort Myers and prescribed a new diet. Edison, however, has so far refused to change from his diet of milk exclusively.

Mr. Edison finds it difficult for him to keep on his feet for any great length of time. That explains why he has been seen in a reclining chair a good deal of late.

The chair, similar to those seen on the boardwalks at Atlantic City and Palm Beach, was given to him on his last birthday by his wife, Mrs. Mina Miller Edison. He is wheeled in it daily from his home across the road to his laboratory where he is experimenting with golden rod, a plant from which he hopes to extract a grade of rubber that could be grown in any climate and which would be of incalculable value to the United States government in the event of a national emergency.

EATS WITH CRONIES
The famous inventor looked to be in fairly good physical condition last night when he was driven from his estate to attend a dinner given by one of his old "cronies," Harvey S. Firestone, the manufacturer.

Also present at the dinner, which was private, was Mrs. Edison, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Nichols, relatives of the Edisons, Roger Firestone, son of the manufacturer, and Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the publisher.

Mr. Edison walked across the hotel lobby with a slow step. His shoulders were stooped and he seemed considerably older than he did a year ago. He was, nevertheless, as cheerful and genial as ever.

His other old "crony," Henry Ford, of Detroit, had not arrived at Fort Myers up to a late hour last night and nobody here knew whether Ford would be here or not. Ford has attended Mr. Edison's birthday parties the last four years.

WITNESSES IN TRIAL HEARD

Interest In Daugherty Trial Running High in Washington C. H. Today.

WASHINGTON, C. H., Feb. 11.—Twenty-three witnesses, among them, O. C. Gray, state superintendent of banking, today were to start filtering through the witness stand here in the trial of Mal S. Daugherty, former president of defunct Ohio State Bank, charged with mishandling funds of the institution.

First witnesses in the often-delayed trial, were to be called following the opening statements of opposing counsel. The jury which will decide whether or not the former bank president is guilty was completed yesterday.

Following its completion, the jury was prepared for what appears to be a long, drawn-out trial. Throughout the sessions, the jury will be carefully guarded. Last night the jurors were quartered in a local hotel in the custody of court bailiffs.

Interest in the trial of Daugherty is running high among the residents of this farming community. Many of the huge crowd of spectators who have jammed the courtroom daily since the opening of the trial suffered losses in the collapse of Daugherty's bank.

HOUSE GROUP JUGGLES DRY LAW QUESTION

Indication of Disposal of Nippert Resolution Still Found Absent

MANY ARGUE MOVE
More Than 200 Jam Conference Room of House

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 11.—A ruffled and debate-torn house judiciary committee juggled the prohibition question gingerly today without the slightest indication of what disposal it plans to make of the delicate subject.

Late into last night, the committee argued and wrangled with much ado over the Nippert resolution, proposing repeal of the state prohibition amendment. But the debate ended nowhere, except to place the matter on the shelf again temporarily.

Additional hearings were expected before any definite action is taken by the committee. About 200 persons jammed the conference room where the committee took up the prohibition subject.

OHIOANS DISPLEASED
Supporters of the resolution asserted that Ohioans are dissatisfied with the existing situation resulting from prohibition laws. They explained that they stand for "true temperance" and are opposed to the return of the saloon.

Opponents, insisted that the Crutcher dry law and other state prohibition enforcement measures would be nullified if the prohibition amendment to the state constitution was repealed. Friends of the Nippert resolution took issue with the contention. They argued that even if the dry amendment to the state constitution was repealed, the state dry laws would continue operative as long as the 18th amendment remains in the federal constitution.

Prohibition advocates who addressed the committee insisted that prohibition "is here to stay". They predicted that if the wet-dry issue is again submitted to a statewide referendum vote, the drys will win by a large margin.

Opponents of the Nipperts resolution took particular exception to the provision in the resolution for a referendum vote at the polls next November. They declared that if Ohioans desire repeal of the dry amendment to the state constitution or the nullification of state dry laws they could seek this end

Michigan University Fraternity Houses Scenes Of Arrests Today

A WEEK-END SUPPLY
Stocks Found in Basements of Many Houses

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 11.—One hundred students were reported arrested and quantities of bonded liquor seized in raids by local police on five of the oldest and largest fraternity houses on the University of Michigan campus here today.

According to police, the liquor was the annual supply for the week-end. The raids were made on search warrants based on information said to have been supplied by bootlegger's runner arrested while delivering liquor to one of the houses.

"It was the second so-called 'liquor scandal' to sweep the university's campus in the past two weeks. Three alleged campus bootleggers, two of them students, were arrested a fortnight ago and are awaiting trial. The latter incident also caused a sensation here.

The hundred students were taken to police stations following the raids and later were released on their personal recognizance to appear for arraignment this morning on charges of violating the state prohibition laws.

The raids were made in a series starting at 3 o'clock this morning. As the raiders gained entrance to the different fraternity houses, they routed students from their beds and forced them to dress.

In many cases, the raiders reported, quantities of alleged liquor were found in sleeping rooms, apparently the property of individuals. In others, stocks were found in basements of the houses, ostensibly community property.

The fraternities, all of which have large alumni representations throughout the country, are alleged by police to be the Delta Kappa Epsilon, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the Kappa Sigma, the Phi Delta Theta and the Theta Delta Chi.

MEN'S CLUB HAS PROGRAM

Scott Wehe, Columbus, Addresses Gathering at Presbyterian Church.

The Men's Club of the Presbyterian church, with several guests, enjoyed one of its best programs, in charge of Fred C. Clark, Tuesday evening when Scott Wehe, former president of Columbus city council, addressed more than 40 persons using as his subject, "The Problems of City Government."

Mr. Wehe's talk was interesting from start to finish. Rev. William Alexander of South Bloomfield, popular humorist, gave a short talk after Mr. Wehe which was well received. The pastor's fine sense of humor and English brogue makes him interesting no matter how often he is heard.

Music was another part of the program with the Men's Club quartet of Pat Yates, Glen Geib, Adrian Yates and George Roth, accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, furnishing several numbers. Miss Helen B. Marion, accompanied by Miss Clarke, and the quartet, sang two songs. Miss Mildred Barthelmas, accompanied by Mrs. Karl J. Herrmann, sang several songs and whistled to the delight of the gathering.

It is planned that the next meeting will be a ladies night. Dr. D. V. Courtwright is chairman of the committee for this meeting.

UNEMPLOYED MAN SUICIDES

JACKSON, O., Feb. 11.—Jackson-co's first tragedy attributed to unemployment and drought conditions was written into the records today with the death of William Bartlett, 60-year-old farmer and miner, who authorities said committed suicide.

Bartlett ended his life yesterday shortly after eating his evening meal. Quietly leaving his wife, an invalid, he walked into the rear yard of his home near here and fired a shotgun directly into his face blowing off his head.

He had been out of work for some time and was worried about his wife's crippled condition.

RASKOB ISSUES CALL TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

Democratic Party Problems and Plans for 1932 Campaign To be Laid
PURPOSE OUTLINED

Party Leader to Give Critics Chance to Shoot

By GEORGE E. BOLLING
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The national Democratic rally, the first since the memorable campaign of 1928 -- has been called to meet in Washington on March 5, the day after Congress adjourns, to consider party problems and lay plans for 1932.

The call for the meeting, which is to include members of the national committee and the party leaders in and out of Congress, was issued by Chairman John J. Raskob, for whom the rabid southern drys have been gunning for a long time. He has decided to give his critics a chance to shoot at him in the open.

The purpose of the March meeting were outlined by Chairman Raskob as follows: "The meeting is to receive reports of the splendid accomplishments secured during the past 18 months by the fine organization in Washington built up under the able direction and leadership of J. J. Raskob, chairman of the executive committee, and to discuss plans and policies for the coming year."

There will be, in addition, Chairman Raskob said, a review of the financial situation of the party, which, from almost any standpoint isn't so good. The party is approximately $630,000 in the "red." It owes Chairman Raskob personally some $225,000 and the County Trust Co., of New York, some $400,000 more on notes which Chairman Raskob and his friends endorsed.

The formal language of the call, however, does not tell the whole story of the purposes of the meeting. Of course, plans and finances are going to be discussed at length, but one of the prime underlying purposes of having the meeting meet at this time is to have a showdown on the smiting that has been quite general in Chairman Raskob's direction ever since the defeat two years ago.

While this shooting has been persistent and much publicized, it has been confined to a comparatively small group of southern politicians, to whom the chairman's witness is insignificant and to another comparatively small group who resent the fact that the party is so deeply indebted to him financially.

POPE PIUS IS ON AIR

Plans Completed by National Broadcast Companies For Address Thursday.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Plans were completed today by the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System for the International Radio program tomorrow morning during which Pope Pius will address a world-wide audience.

The broadcast is scheduled to start at 10:30 eastern standard time, when a fanfare of trumpets will announce the Pope's arrival at the new station in Vatican City. The Pope will speak in Latin in his first address and later in Italian. Music will form a part of the broadcast.

The schedule for the historic program originating in the Holy See, and formally inaugurating the new Papal station, WJL, has been outlined by Senators Guglielmo Marconi's staff, and only magnetic disturbances in ocean areas can interfere with the carefully laid-out program.

The program, including two speeches by His Holiness, announced by Senator Marconi, and transmissions of the dedicatory address, is expected to last approximately four hours.

Gave Pair Ride, Walked Himself

Heres' a story of a 'Good Samaritan'!

Ralph McQuade, S. Clinton-st., an employee of The Herald office, returning from Lancaster at about midnight Tuesday stopped the Ford roadster he was driving to give two men a ride toward Amanda. After riding a short way the men, between 24 and 27 years of age, asked McQuade if he had any money. The reply was "No". McQuade was ordered to leave the automobile promptly, which he did more promptly.

The pair drove away, and there was the former driver of the car, on the highway bound for home at midnight. He walked about two miles into Amanda and fortunately got a ride to this city.

The Ford was found early Wednesday near the Marion green-house on the Lancaster-pk with all the wiring burned.

OHIO VILLAGE IS ISOLATED

An Epidemic of Scarlet Fever Near Fremont Results In Closed School.

FREMONT, O., Feb. 11.—Discovery of an epidemic of scarlet fever while an examination was being conducted for small pox, today resulted in the almost complete isolation of the village of Green Springs, a health resort of 500 population, four miles southeast of here.

Dr. O. H. Thomas, Sandusky-co health commissioner, who discovered the scarlet fever while examining students in the Green Creek township school, was in the village today, conferring with officials as to the advisability of compelling the inoculation of every resident in the community.

Dr. Thomas discovered the existence of scarlet fever in the community when he questioned a student he was examining for traces of small pox yesterday. Six cases of the fever were found among the pupils attending the school in an investigation which followed.

SOLDIERS' BILL DROUTH RELIEF SEEK ACTION

Night Sessions of Congress Called to Prevent An Extra Session

SPEED IS NEEDED
Democrats Favor Relief, Insurgents Do Not

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Enactment of the compromise $20,000,000 drought relief measure, a bill to cash the soldiers' bonus and $4,500,000,000 in appropriation bills constituted the administration's program for the remainder of the "lame duck" session. It was announced today. Night sessions were ordered to speed action.

The drought relief measure, already accepted by Democratic leaders, has struck a snag in the senate, where it met opposition from insurgents in both parties. It was condemned for abandoning urban refugees of the unemployment wave, and those rural inhabitants who lack the necessary security for government loans. In the end, it will be approved by congress but not before the insurgents make it an issue for the next campaign.

The soldier bonus question was being arbitrated at both ends of the capital, with the legislators hoping to reach some agreement with the president. It was quite possible congress would enact a bill, paying the present cash value of the bonus certificates, but permitting those who wished to hold the certificates until maturity. This proposition has the greatest support and may possibly be approved by the president.

The outlook on appropriation bills was none too optimistic, although administration leaders insisted all would be enacted before March 4.

The failure of a single bill would necessitate a special session of the new congress as the government departments are conducted on annual appropriations.

Only one of the eleven necessary supply bills has been enacted into law, while but 18 legislative days remain before the lame duck session ends. Six appropriation bills have passed both branches and sent to conference. Two more have passed the house and are pending in the senate. One is under debate in the house now and the last, the second deficiency bill, is being drafted.

The Interior Department bill was tied up in the senate, because of the controversy over drought relief and a battle over federal aid for Indian tribes. The senate added a hundred amendments to the bill last week, intended to provide better treatment for Indians. All were deleted by the conferees.

The drought relief controversy will be settled ultimately as the administration desires. The debate probably will last two more days. The insurgent criticism was aimed at the failure of the compromise to include any relief for the unemployed in the cities or those farmers too poor to give security for federal loans. Senator LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin, led the fight against the measure, charging it was an "unconditional surrender" of the senate's original position.

Final action on the interior bill will leave nine other appropriations bills to be passed before March 4.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 11.—A ruffled and debate-torn house judiciary committee juggled the prohibition question gingerly today without the slightest indication of what disposal it plans to make of the delicate subject.

Late into last night, the committee argued and wrangled with much ado over the Nippert resolution, proposing repeal of the state prohibition amendment. But the debate ended nowhere, except to place the matter on the shelf again temporarily.

Additional hearings were expected before any definite action is taken by the committee. About 200 persons jammed the conference room where the committee took up the prohibition subject.

OHIOANS DISPLEASED

Supporters of the resolution asserted that Ohioans are dissatisfied with the existing situation resulting from prohibition laws. They explained that they stand for "true temperance" and are opposed to the return of the saloon.

Opponents insisted that the Crabbie dry law and other state prohibition enforcement measures would be nullified if the prohibition amendment to the state constitution was repealed. Friends of the Nippert resolution took issue with the contention. They argued that even if the dry amendment to the state constitution was repealed, the state dry laws would continue operative as long as the 18th amendment remains in the federal constitution.

Prohibition advocates who addressed the committee insisted that prohibition "is here to stay". They predicted that if the wet-dry issue is again submitted to a statewide referendum vote, the drys will win by a large margin.

Opponents of the Nippert resolution took particular exception to the provision in the resolution for a referendum vote at the polls next November. They declared that if Ohioans desire repeal of the dry amendment to the state constitution or the nullification of state dry laws they could seek this end Continued on Page 8, Column 3

JUDGMENT IN BITZER DEATH

A judgment of $3,000 was awarded Wednesday by the Franklin-co common pleas court to the estate of Dorothy Bitzer, formerly of Pickaway-tw2, who was drowned on June 16, 1929 when a rowboat in which she was seated went over the city storage dam at Columbus. The judgment was rendered against the City of Columbus.

A similar amount was granted to the estate of Emerson D. Wright, of Columbus, who was also drowned in the accident. Relatives of both victims had sued the city for damages of $50,000 each.

Michigan University Fraternity Houses Scenes Of Arrests Today

A WEEK-END SUPPLY

Stocks Found in Basements of Many Houses

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 11.—One hundred students were reported arrested and quantities of bonded liquor seized in raids by local police on five of the oldest and largest fraternity houses on the University of Michigan campus here today.

According to police, the liquor was the annual supply for the week-end. The raids were made on search warrants based on information said to have been supplied by bootlegger's runner arrested while delivering liquor to one of the houses.

"It was the second so-called 'liquor scandal' to sweep the university's campus in the past two weeks. Three alleged campus bootleggers, two of them students, were arrested a fortnight ago and are awaiting trial. The latter incident also caused a sensation here.

The hundred students were taken to police stations following the raids and later were released on their personal recognizance to appear for arraignment this morning on charges of violating the state prohibition laws.

The raids were made in a series starting at 3 o'clock this morning. As the raiders gained entrance to the different fraternity houses, they routed students from their beds and forced them to dress.

In many cases, the raiders reported, quantities of alleged liquor were found in sleeping rooms, apparently the property of individuals. In others, stocks were found in basements of the houses, ostensibly community property.

The fraternities, all of which have large alumni representations throughout the country, are alleged by police to be the Delta Kappa Epsilon, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the Kappa Sigma, the Phi Delta Theta and the Theta Delta Chi.

MEN'S CLUB HAS PROGRAM

Scott Wehe, Columbus, Addresses Gathering at Presbyterian Church.

The Men's Club of the Presbyterian church, with several guests, enjoyed one of its best programs, in charge of Fred C. Clark, Tuesday evening when Scott Wehe, former president of Columbus city council, addressed more than 40 persons using as his subject, "The Problems of City Government."

Mr. Wehe's talk was interesting from start to finish. Rev. William Alexander of South Bloomfield, popular humorist, gave a short talk after Mr. Wehe which was well received. The pastor's fine sense of humor and English brogue makes him interesting no matter how often he is heard.

Music was another part of the program with the Men's Club quartet of Pat Yates, Glen Geib, Adrian Yates and George Roth, accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, furnishing several numbers. Miss Helen B. Marion, accompanied by Miss Clarke, and the quartet, sang two songs. Miss Mildred Barthelme, accompanied by Mrs. Karl J. Hermann, sang several songs and whistled to the delight of the gathering.

It is planned that the next meeting will be a ladies night. Dr. D. V. Courtright is chairman of the committee for this meeting.

UNEMPLOYED MAN SUICIDES

JACKSON, O., Feb. 11.—Jackson-co's first tragedy attributed to unemployment and drought conditions was written into the records today with the death of William Bartlett, 60-year-old farmer and miner, who authorities said committed suicide.

Bartlett ended his life yesterday shortly after eating his evening meal. Quietly leaving his wife, an invalid, he walked into the rear yard of his home near here and fired a shotgun directly into his face, blowing off his head.

He had been out of work for some time and was worried about his wife's crippled condition.

RASKOB ISSUES CALL TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

Democratic Party Problems and Plans for 1932 Campaign To be Laid

PURPOSE OUTLINED

Party Leader to Give Critics Chance to Shoot

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A national Democratic rally -- the first since the memorable campaign of 1928 -- has been called to meet in Washington on March 5, the day after Congress adjourns, to consider party problems and lay plans for 1932.

The call for the meeting, which is to include members of the national committee and the party leaders in and out of Congress, was issued by Chairman John J. Raskob, for whom the rabid southern drys have been gunning for a long time. He has decided to give his critics a chance to shoot at him in the open.

The purpose of the March meeting were outlined by Chairman Raskob as follows:

"The meeting is to receive reports of the splendid accomplishments secured during the past 18 months by the fine organization in Washington built up under the able direction and leadership of J. M. Raskob, chairman of our executive committee, and to discuss plans and policies to govern our activities during the next fifteen months."

There will be, in addition, Chairman Raskob said, a review of the financial situation of the party, which, from almost any standpoint, isn't so good. The party is approximately $630,000 in the "red." It owes Chairman Raskob personally some $225,000 and the County Trust Co., of New York, some $400,000 more on notes which Chairman Raskob and his friends endorsed.

The formal language of the call, however, does not tell the whole story of the purposes of the meeting. Of course, plans and finances are going to be discussed at length, but one of the prime underlying purposes of having the leaders meet at this time is to have a showdown on the sniping that has been quite general in Chairman Raskob's direction ever since the defeat two years ago.

While this shooting has been persistent and much publicized, it has been confined to a comparatively small group of southern prohibitionists, to whom the national chairman's witness is anathema, and to another comparatively small group who resent the fact that the party is so deeply indebted to him financially.

POPE PIUS IS ON AIR

Plans Completed by National Broadcasting Companies For Address Thursday.

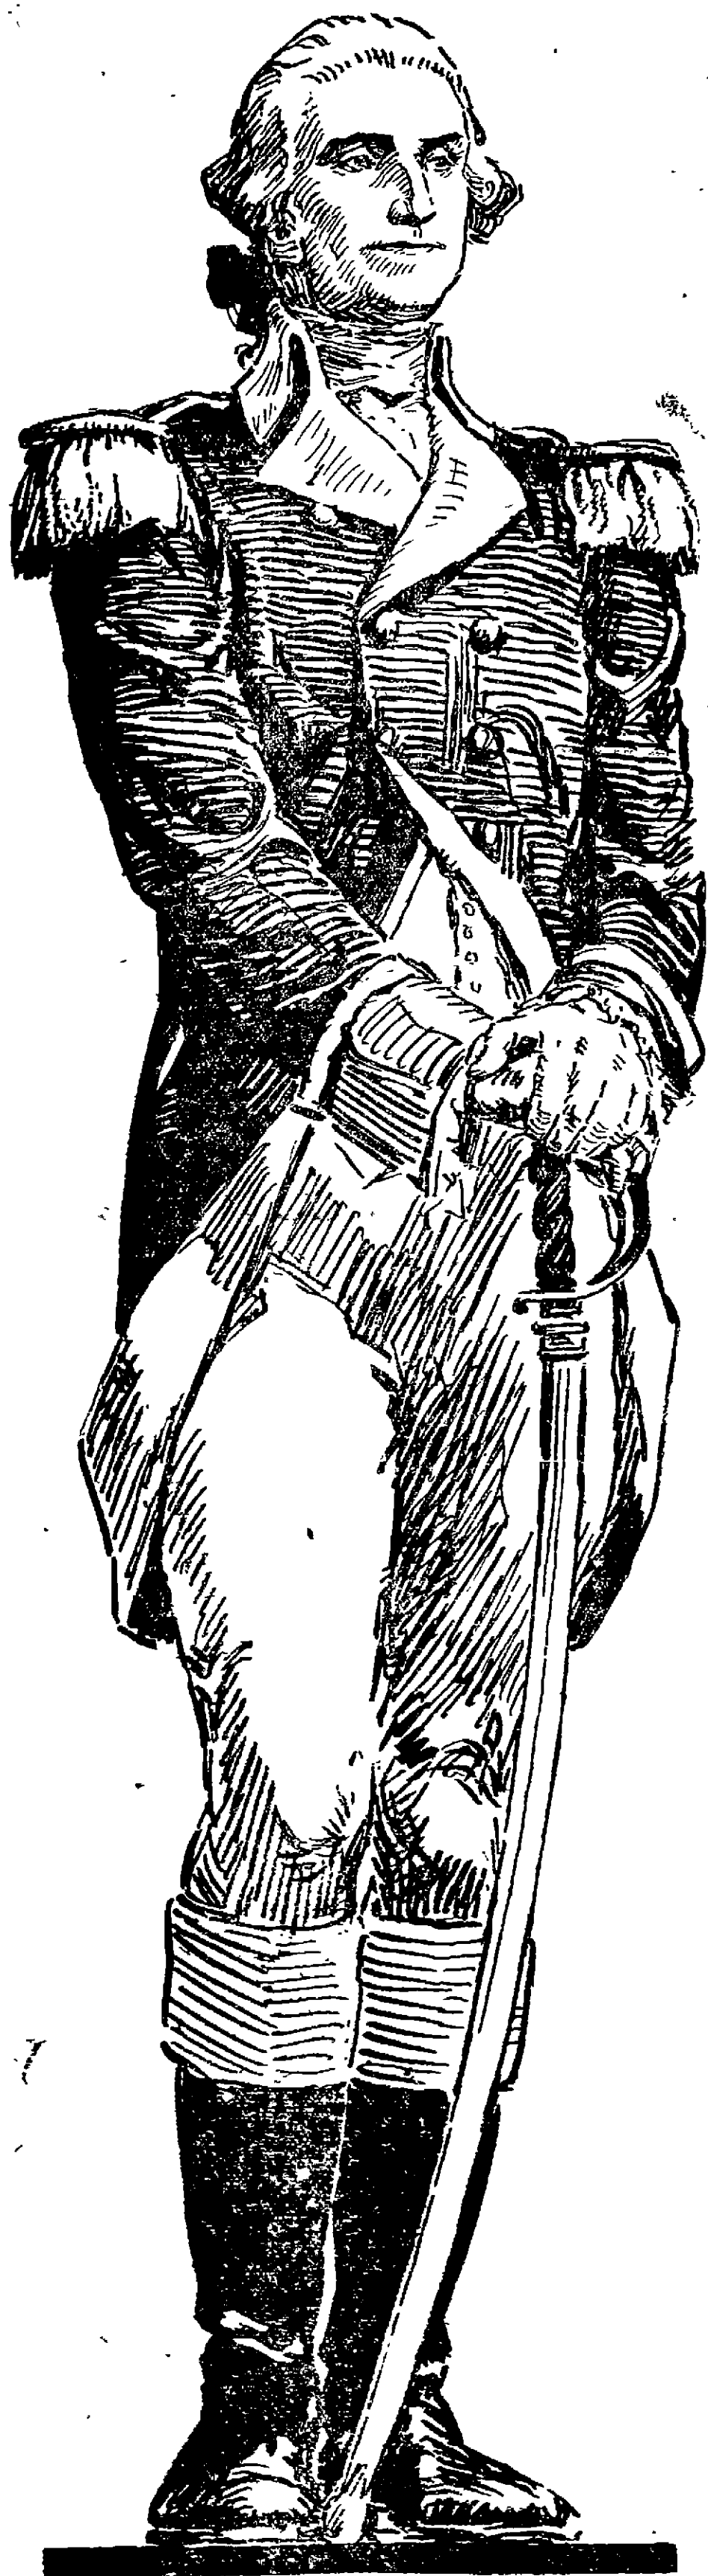

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Plans were completed today by the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System for the International Radio program tomorrow morning during which Pope Pius will address a world-wide audience.

The broadcast is scheduled to start at 10:30 eastern standard time, when a fanfare of trumpets will announce the Pope's arrival at the new station in Vatican City. The Pope will speak in Latin in his first address and later in Italian. Music will form a part of the broadcast.

The schedule for the historic program originating in the Holy See, and formally inaugurating the new Papal station, HVJ, has been outlined by Senator Guglielmo Marconi's staff, and only magnetic disturbances in ocean areas can interfere with the carefully laid plans, engineers declared.

The program, including two speeches by His Holiness, remarks by Senator Marconi, and translations of the dedicatory address, is expected to last approximately an hour.

ADVERSITY MADE THEM GREAT

FOG-LIKE, legend has long since wrapped itself about the figures of Washington and Lincoln. Of each little but myths are left...myths of an epic quality through which it has become nearly impossible to see the man. Standing, god-like, in the sun of a nation's adoration, each casts a shadow that obliterates the very traits that made him great...those intensely human qualities which made decision hard when a people's fate hung in the balance.

Yet it is from these very human qualities that made failure always imminent that we can best draw inspiration for courage when courage is most needed.

Lincoln and Washington are immortal because each met and mastered very human problems in the face of his own limitations. They were often petty, gruelling tasks whose accomplishment meant no Homeric reward, but only further thankless labor, only other obstacles to be cleared by human skill in the face of human failings.

Not a heaven-sent inspiration . . . but perseverance and tireless work in the face of Valley Forge, official jealousies, subordinate blundering and a shilly-shallying congress brought victory to Washington in 1781. Not divine omniscience . . . but the weary struggles of a gaunt, perplexed countryman dedicated a reunited nation to a glorious destiny in spite of bickering politicians, incompetent generals, military unfamiliarity, a scolding wife and a mad actor's gun.

These, then, are the real Washington . . . the real Lincoln . . . men whose works live on to inspire posterity because their responsibility called forth their utmost powers. To a nation faced with economic discouragements their problems make ours seem quite insignificant and petty in comparison.

UNEMPLOYMENT, WOMAN WORK IS SUBJECT FOR DISCUSSION

What does unemployment mean to the woman worker? In a radio talk broadcast from St. Louis yesterday under the auspices of the Missouri League of Women Voters, Miss Mary Anderson, Director of the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, pointed out that much has been thought and written as to what part women are playing in the present industrial drama. Are they caught equally with men in the swings of seasonal and cyclical unemployment and in the changes of technological unemployment, or does their lower wage standard, so long deplored, give them an unfortunate advantage in the wage market today?

"So far as we know at present," Miss Anderson said, "women have not driven men out of their jobs. The problem has been one of adjustment of both sexes in industry rather than of the displacement of either sex by the other. Much more light will be thrown on the subject with the publication of the 1930 Census data."

"That women's wages have never equaled men's is a well-established fact, and if, in some cases, it is shown that women with their low wages are crowding men out of the labor market in times of depression, another and compelling argument will be added to the plea long made by the Women's Bureau for a single wage standard based on occupation and not on sex.

"Although they may not be seen standing in the breadlines to the same extent as men, women workers as well as men are suffering the hardships and miseries of unemployment. Especially are women subjected to the trials and difficulties of seasonal employment concentrated as they are in the more irregular, unskilled, and seasonal occupations. Thus the clothing, textile, and food industries are all seasonal and are all major employers of women."

In stating that everywhere large numbers of women have joined the ranks of the unemployed, Miss Anderson referred to the reports of the New York City Municipal Employment Agency which show that, during the first eight weeks of its existence, of the 45,000 men and women registered, approximately 6,000 were women.

As another center of much controversy at the present time, Miss Anderson pointed to the question of the married woman worker. "Because in the neighborhood there may be a family in which both a man and his wife work, perhaps drawing very good salaries, or that they are only working to earn better clothes, a new car, or a radio."

"That this is not true the findings of the Women's Bureau have clearly shown. The majority of the married women who are working are so employed because their wages are actually necessary for the support of the home and family. The figures collected by the bureau in scientifically conducted investigations show that to support a family even at a level of mere decency requires more than the income obtained by hundreds of thousands of wage-earning fathers and husbands today. Any wholesale policy, therefore, of discharging married women without ascertaining whether or not the family depends upon them would be unjust and unsound."

The crux of the unemployment situation, in Miss Anderson's opinion, lies in the fact that today the buying power of our people has not kept pace with our mass production. The most powerful, permanent, and far-reaching solution for this situation lies in the short workday and the maintenance of adequate wages. We can manufacture for the wants of our people, but if the people have not the consuming power, the money to spend, and the time in which to consume goods, the market becomes stagnant and business dislocation and poverty follow. It has been pointed out that industry can no more continue to produce without a market than it can check money out of the bank without first having made sufficient deposits.

This is the program that I would like to submit to the American people as a solution of unemployment. Working toward a national industrial prosperity that will insure the opportunity of work to every able-bodied man and woman and will enable industry and so-

CHILD LABOR BEFORE OHIO

COLUMBUS, O. — "Human treatment for the criminal and the young through abolition of capital punishment and ratification of the child labor amendment was asked today in the state legislature."

The death sentence would be outlawed for first degree murder in all cases except the slaying of a police officer and a life term in the penitentiary would be substituted if a bill introduced by Senator Paul E. Yoder (D), of Dayton, is passed.

Ratification of the federal child labor amendment which the state legislature defeated in 1925 was requested in a resolution submitted to the senate by Senator James A. Reynolds (D) of Cleveland.

Opposition that arose to Senator Yoder's bill from Dayton police after it was learned that he had prepared such a measure delayed presentation for several days.

State prohibition inspectors are not included in the list of police officers whose slaying calls for a death sentence under the Yoder bill.

Life imprisonment for wilful first degree murder is provided in all cases of premeditated rape, arson, robbery, burglary, train wrecking and shooting of police and sheriffs which result in death.

Senator Yoder will point out to the senate that capital punishment already has been abolished in several states, he said.

The federal child labor amendment for which Senator Reynolds seeks ratification empowers Congress to regulate the employment of minors under 18 years of age.

Five states have ratified the amendment and 33 have rejected it. Women in the state legislature backed the amendment in 1925, but lost in both houses.

NO INCREASE IN OHIO TAX

COLUMBUS, O.—Ohio Taxes for the present biennium must not increase, state financial experts declared today.

Vigorous opposition to any plan for tax-increasing was expressed by Senator Robert L. Rone (R) of Tiffin, chairman of the senate finance committee, following a conference with Governor White yesterday.

Rone's opinion was shared by Finance Director Howard Bevis and L. P. Moorey (R) of Logan, chairman of the house finance committee, Senator Rone declared.

"I am opposed to the passage of any bills which seek to secure revenue from new channels," Senator Rone declared.

Financial experts agree that the state must live within its means, Senator Rone said.

"The appropriations must be kept within the estimated revenues for the two-year period," Rone added.

Rone's statement was made following a conference with the governor when representatives of the Chamber of Commerce urged Mr. White to insist upon a balanced budget for the next two years.

The state was urged to take a "building holiday" during the next two years except in the state warfare department, where improvement to penal institutions are said to be needed.

Detailed study of state budget requests will be delayed until tax-increase committees can determine how much revenue will be available, Senator Rone said.

The Chamber of Commerce report estimates $75,076,000 will be provided, but the department of finance had anticipated only $69,900,000 income according to Rone.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is the quickest of any.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. Take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon, and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night. Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive

Low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation mean a distinct saving to every purchaser

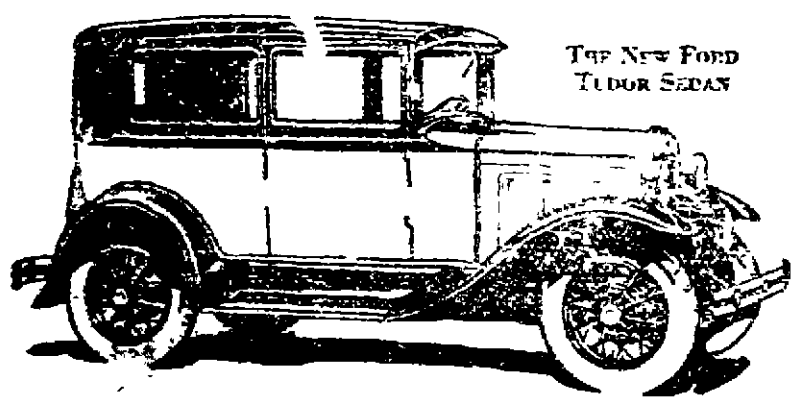

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

There are, in addition, three other features of importance to every far-seeing automobile owner... low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of fine craftsmanship in automobile engineering.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact... It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

ADVERSITY MADE THEM GREAT

FOG-LIKE, legend has long since wrapped itself about the figures of Washington and Lincoln. Of each little but myths are left...myths of an epic quality through which it has become nearly impossible to see the man. Standing, god-like, in the sun of a nation's adoration, each casts a shadow that obliterates the very traits that made him great...those intensely human qualities which made decision hard when a people's fate hung in the balance.

Yet it is from these very human qualities that made failure always imminent that we can best draw inspiration for courage when courage is most needed.

Lincoln and Washington are immortal because each met and mastered very human problems in the face of his own limitations. They were often petty, gruelling tasks whose accomplishment meant no Homeric reward, but only further thankless labor, only other obstacles to be cleared by human skill in the face of human failings.

Not a heaven-sent inspiration . . . but perseverance and tireless work in the face of Valley Forge, official jealousies, subordinate blundering and a shilly-shallying congress brought victory to Washington in 1781. Not divine omniscience . . . but the weary struggles of a gaunt, perplexed countryman dedicated a reunited nation to a glorious destiny in spite of bickering politicians, incompetent generals, military unfamiliarity, a scolding wife and a mad actor's gun.

These, then, are the real Washington . . . the real Lincoln . . . men whose works live on to inspire posterity because their responsibility called forth their utmost powers. To a nation faced with economic discouragements their problems make ours seem quite insignificant and petty in comparison.

POLICE GUARD AGAINST ACTION OF WASHINGTON COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—An extra force of policemen was stationed about the Capitol today to prevent a threatened invasion of the senate and house chambers by communist agitators.

The communists have threatened to invade the galleries and the floors to read their demands for grants of $15 a week to the unemployed.

The same elements staged a demonstration on the opening day of congress, Dec. 1, and tear bombs and pistol shots were necessary to disperse them.

Three of the policemen were stationed in front of Speaker Nick Longworth's office, with instructions not to permit the communists to enter. A meeting of the Republican steering committee was to be held there during the morning.

Capitol officials said the communists would be permitted to enter the public galleries of the house but that they would be ejected at the first signs of interruption or disorder. City policemen were placed among the spectators in the galleries, ready to curb any demonstration.

The guards outside the Capitol were given tear gas bombs "to use if necessary."

TWO GUNMEN ARE CAUGHT

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Spirited here from Phoenix, Ariz., two asserted gunmen, alleged to have been implicated with Ralph Sheldon in the kidnaping of E. L. "Zeke" Carless, millionaire gambler and his wife on Dec. 20 and held for $50,000 ransom, were in custody here today.

Those arrested were Louis Franks, 45, said by police to be a Los Angeles rum running king, and Ray Wagner, alias Jackson, 35, said to be a St. Louis gangster.

Wagner is suffering from a wound under the heart, said to have been received during a gun battle with Long Beach, Cal., police at the time of the kidnaping.

Sheldon was arrested shortly after the gun battle at Long Beach when Officer W. H. Waggoner was shot by the men who were reported to be on their way to a gambling ship anchored off the coast to cash a $50,000 check which they forced Carless to sign.

Carless and his wife were later released.

Wagner, who is said to be dying, and Franks have refused to talk, police said.

H. DILLEHAY IS NOW FREE

COLUMBUS, O.—After serving more than three years of a two-to-20-year sentence on a charge of forgery, Harry Dillehay, 42, passed through the gates of Ohio penitentiary here today a free man.

Dillehay's parole, recently granted by the Ohio board of clemency, became effective Tuesday morning and, after receiving the good wishes and congratulations of prison officials, with whom he had worked for most of his imprisonment, he boarded a bus for Coshocton, home of his daughter, who was married about a year ago.

Dillehay had been a trusty during the majority of his term and was an assistant clerk in the office of Walter J. Kohberger, secretary to the warden. Prison officials said they held Dillehay in the highest regard. He was admitted to the penitentiary on Dec. 27, 1927 from Tuscarawas-co.

"I'm certainly happy to be freed

and to get on the 'outside' again," was Dillehay's only comment on his release.

Penitentiary authorities revealed that Dillehay will visit his daughter until next Monday when he plans to return to Columbus to re-enter the insurance business. It was understood that he had taken an executive position with the Western & Southern Life Insurance Company.

Probably the person most concerned about the prisoner's leaving, next to Dillehay himself, was Walter Kohberger. He expressed genuine regret about losing "the best assistant I ever had," although he said he was extremely glad that Dillehay was a free man again.

All over America these steps are being taken in the war against Unemployment

DO not think of unemployment in terms of millions of people out of work in this broad land of America.

Think of unemployment as a few people out of work within a stone's throw of you—your own neighbors. Maybe one, or maybe two out of every twenty in your vicinity. That, after all, is the unemployment problem.

Put those persons back to work and that ends the unemployment problem in your vicinity. Don't worry about other communities. They will take care of their problem in the same way... in fact are doing so, in every part of the United States.

Modesty

IN Tahiti clothing may be discarded entirely without giving offense. In Central Asia the exposure of the finger tips is considered the limit of immodesty, and Chinese maidens would blush with shame should, by accident, one of their tiny feet be exposed to public view. Modesty forbids the Mohammedan woman to uncover her face to the gaze of strangers. Arabian women in Brazil feel fully clothed in but a girdle and a generous application of grease paint. Any part of the feminine body may be exposed in Sumatra and Celebes but the knee, and the women of an Alaskan tribe once paraded their camp streets in nothing but an ornamental rug carried under their lips.

Further proof that modesty is not innate in man and that clothing is not a measure of modesty is provided by the self-styled civilized peoples of this very age. In the preceding paragraph different races were compared, but the same results may be obtained by comparing two living generations of the same civilized country.

Members of one generation define modesty in terms of ankle-length dresses, sleeves reaching to the wrist, neck-hugging collars, thick stockings, multiple-piece clothing and long hair. A later generation cuts off its dress at the calf and elbow and exposes a bit of chest. And a third generation raises the skirt to the knees, abolishes the sleeve entirely, cuts the neck as low as the law allows and adopts a two-piece costume. And yet the generation with the least clothing is the least self-conscious and embarrassed of the three when subjected to the gaze of masculine eyes.

If modesty is a matter of clothes each woman must fit her clothes to her own standards of modesty.

Man Made Laws

MANY intelligent citizens look upon the growing criminal statutes of the nation with a feeling akin to shame. They can not overlook the inference that all these laws are necessary to preserve the life and property of the individual from his fellow men in this reputedly most enlightened and civilized of nations. They ask themselves if this, a nation of children and illiterates to need so much restraint.

A statistician, perhaps in satirization of the criminal code, computed statistics showing that a law-abiding citizen has 99 chances of arrest every 24 hours. There is more tragedy than jest, however, in the announcement of a bonding company that, because of the increasing threat of arrest, it would issue an annual bond to be carried on the person to obtain the release of the holder in case of arrest. Most automobile drivers operate their cars in constant fear of arrest for some trivial breach of regulation. The most careful and capable driver is no more immune from this threat than the thoughtless and untrained operator.

It is feared by some that the American people are creating for themselves a tyranny of law, the yoke of which will eventually become as intolerable as a tyranny of man. And tyrants are more easily seated than dethroned.

The United States has a criminal class and it has a complex society that becomes more complex as the country grows in population. On the other hand, it has a public school system and prides itself on its high standard of intelligence and morality. With this latter the swelling statutes seem incongruous.

The "Movie"

THOSE Americans who aspire to some degree of culture and who pride themselves on their appreciation of the best in music, drama and art are placed in a most embarrassing and confusing position by those superior intellects who seem to have consecrated their pens and tongues to the depreciation and condemnation of the movie.

After reading that the movies are trash, dished out for the amusement of children and adults with child minds, men and women who patronize drama and enjoy tragedy for its ending, sometimes go to the movie to satisfy themselves as to the truth of the charges of its critics or purely in the spirit of gambling on getting two hours of good entertainment.

And when they come out from the darkness within to the foyer

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, becomes cynical toward love when she gives up Mat Tully at her mother's request because he is poor. She encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy married man, who, enamored of Nancy, wishes to divorce his wife. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur. Leaving her chapters, the rich Porters, Nancy, after a violent but brief courtship, secretly marries Roger. Her folks at home wonder at her continued absence.

CHAPTER XIX.

ONCE Roger went out to hunt up some government official—something to do with his work—and left her alone.

"I won't miss you a bit. I'll do a little illegal washing in the wash basin. Maybe I'll even darn a stocking!" she told him, laughing. But when he was gone and she dragged the suitcases out from under the bed, and poked and pushed through their rumpled contents, her high spirits oozed away. She didn't know where to start, there was so much to do. Louise had always done their mending and washing. She felt discouraged and helpless, surrounded by crumpled silks and sad looking linens. Even the coral chiffon dressing gown looked limp, and the French flowers on one satin mule were loose.

And the room was terrible. Sticky varnish on the dresser. None too clean lace curtains at the windows. "I wish we'd taken a chance and gone to the good hotel!" she moaned, but that was impossible, of course, with the Porters likely to turn up any minute. For that matter, she might run into Anita Beamer, staying at the palatial Riverside, where all the divorcees and everyone who was anyone stayed in Reno.

The Warning

Anita Beamer, here in Reno getting a divorce so that Jack could marry her, Nancy thought. How disappointed he would be when he knew that she had jilted him for a ranger... a poor ranger who didn't mind awful hotels, and didn't know the difference between new clothes and old. "It's so funny!" she thought, giggling helplessly. She thought she was laughing, but her eyes were wet, so she must be crying instead. Roger found her, a wilted little heap beside the scattered clothes on the floor when he came back. "Don't leave me! Don't leave me again!" she wailed, and he lifted her in his strong arms and comforted her and laughed at her and they both were happy again.

"The first time you leave me all day I'll probably go home to mama!" she laughed, looking up at him adoringly with wet, velvety eyes.

"Oh, I guess not." But it frightened him a little. He loved her more every day, but he realized that he didn't know her as well as he thought he did. She was so independent up there in the High Sierras, and now she was so soft and clinging. She sure cared a lot for me! he thought, half humbly, half exulting. "My Nancy!"

It was only when she was clinging that Nancy felt that she knew him at all. Sometimes, seeing him at a little distance or hearing him speak to some man about something she knew nothing about, he was a stranger. "That's my husband! I'm married to him," she murmured.

In the church where they were married he had looked so unruly and unfamiliar, with his strange they harbor a secret dread. Although they have been told, by those who claim to know, that the modern movie is cheap and vulgar, and totally lacking in artistic qualities, they have been pleased by the picture and are compelled to draw the self-devastating conclusion that they are deficient in the critical sense; that they are "low brow."

Despite criticisms from home and abroad bearing the stamp of authority, the most cultured and artistic must admit that the American film represents perfection in photography, shows scenic discrimination of a high order, offers the best productions of the legitimate stage and, if not always the best, then the most popular in literature.

Few statues are erected to men who couldn't make a decision without asking the wife.

hair slicked down and his funny little toothbrush moustache shaved too close, that it was all she could do to make the proper responses, and not cry out — "Oh wait — wait — I'm not sure — I'm afraid I'm getting the wrong man!"

Waking sometimes in the night, with Roger sleeping quietly beside her, she cried in the darkness because her world had turned upside down and she was all alone in a strange, queer place.

Now, with Roger's arms about her, his cheek against hers, she was happy, in spite of the shabby room, her disreputable trousseau, her unquiet thoughts about mama. "I do love you," she murmured again, contentedly.

"Well, you ought to tell your mother!"

"Old maid!" she teased. Suddenly she flung her arms tight around his neck, almost choking him, kissing him wildly, again and again. "Roger, I do love you—I do! I do!"

He crushed her to him, bruising her soft flesh, smothering her with passionate kisses. His arms were bands of steel, the rough khaki of his coat scratched her face, but she made no sound. She lay limp in his arms, drunk with happiness.

Minutes passed. Or was it hours? Nancy's eyes were closed. Her thick lashes lay dark on her flushed cheek. Roger nuzzled himself, kissed her closed eyelids.

"But just the same, you ought to write to your mother, old lady!"

"All right," she said, after a long pause.

Conflicting Emotions

He went back to his papers. From where she sat at the ink-stained hotel desk she could see him out of the corner of her eye. A big, blond man in the olive drab of a ranger. Reading the newspaper in a cheap hotel in Reno. Absorbed in it already. I'm married to him," she whispered to herself. A big tear dropped, blotting the ink, spoiling her letter.

Nancy thought she hated Reno. "We can't leave too soon to please me!" she told Roger, over and over. "I'll be just as glad to get out of here as you'll be, honey," he said, and she knew he was hurrying, trying to finish the work that had brought him there.

On the fourth afternoon he went over to the Riverside Hotel to meet two government officials motoring south. It seemed funny to think of Roger at the Riverside while she waited in their hot little home on the other side of town.

"I wish we'd gone there and taken a chance," she told herself for the hundredth time. "It would have been exciting to be over there where all the really smart people stay." But that might have meant a meeting with the Porters or Jack Beamer's wife and Nancy wasn't really ready for that. She wore Roger Decatur's ring on her finger, an unimpressive platinum band. Jack Beamer would have given her a circle of diamonds or emeralds; not that she cared, she insisted, loyally. She'd rather wear Roger's utilitarian wedding ring than a pear-shaped diamond from Jack.

Still... plenty of time to tell about it. In spite of "Mrs. Decatur" on the hotel register, and moments when she could hardly remember that she had ever been single, she still thought of herself as Nancy Hollenbeck. Sometimes she found herself planning, "When I go home..." But of course she wasn't going home... she was going on with Roger, forever and ever.

And whenever she thought of life without him, her knees felt weak and she wanted to cry. She did cry a little this afternoon, thinking of him at the Riverside, hobnobbing with notable, beautiful jeweled divorcees passing in and out, and she stuck in this dingy, ugly little room!

Dissatisfied

But she knew it was silly, so she bathed her reddened eyes and put on her best dress, the beige crepe de chine, and went for a walk.

The loungers in the lobby turned and stared after her. "I suppose they think I'm a divorcee, too!" she thought, and the very idea of it amused her so that she looked right at a fat man in a loud checked suit, and laughed.

Where can you walk in a strange town? Nancy followed the main street, past rows of pleasant looking houses and over a bridge. She didn't know which way to go then, so she walked back on the other side of the street, and reached the hotel half an hour later, hot, tired and cross.

It was such a relief to find Roger back and waiting for her that she fairly flung herself into his arms, rubbing her hot, pink cheeks against his cool, brown one, showering him with absurd, mumbling kisses. "Roger, I DO love you but I hate this horrid place. Can't we go soon?"

Good Lung Action Is Essential to Health

—Make a Habit of Breathing Deeply

Breathing Is Automatic, but That Is No Reason Why It Should Be Shallow, Says Dr. Copeland, Stressing the Value of Daily Walks and Lung Exercise

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DO you practice breathing deeply, or are you habitually given to shallow breathing? There are too many people in this world who do not know how to breathe.

Good lung action is essential to health. To breathe properly is a guarantee of good health.

Of course you know breathing is automatic. It goes on regularly, day and night, just like the ticking of a clock.

The blood circulates through the lungs and around the body three times about a minute. As it passes through the right side of the heart into the lungs it is dark purple in color. It is saturated with waste products gathered up by the blood in its circuit around the body. As you exhale or breathe out, these products escape in watery vapor.

When the lungs inhale, or take in the wonderful chemical laboratory of the body separates the life-giving oxygen from the air. This oxygen is absorbed through the thin walls of the tiny blood-vessels of the lungs. In this way it gets into the general circulation of the blood. At once, there is a change in the blood.

Modesty

IN Tahiti clothing may be discarded entirely without giving offense. In Central Asia the exposure of the finger tips is considered the limit of immodesty, and Chinese maidens would blush with shame should, by accident, one of their tiny feet be exposed to public view. Modesty forbids the Mohammedan woman to uncover her face to the gaze of strangers. Caribbean women in Brazil feel fully clothed in but a girdle and a generous application of grease paint. Any part of the feminine body may be exposed in Sumatra and Celebes to the knee, and the women of an African tribe once paraded their buttocks in nothing but an ornamental rug carried under their

Further proof that modesty is innate in man and that clothing is not a measure of modesty is provided by the self-styled civilized peoples of this very age. In the preceding paragraph different races were compared, but the same results may be obtained by comparing two living generations of the same civilized country.

Members of one generation define modesty in terms of ankle-length dresses, sleeves reaching to the wrist, neck-hugging collars, thick stockings, multiple-pleated clothing and long hair. A later generation cuts off its dress at the calf and elbow and exposes a bit of chest. And a third generation raises the skirt to the knees, abolishes the sleeve entirely, cuts the neck as low as the law allows and adopts a two-piece costume. And yet the generation with the least clothing is the least self-conscious and embarrassed of the three when subjected to the gaze of masculine eyes.

If modesty is a matter of clothes each woman must fit her clothes to her own standards of modesty.

Man Made Laws

MANY intelligent citizens look upon the growing criminal statutes of the nation with a feeling akin to shame. They can not overlook the inference that all these laws are necessary to preserve the life and property of the individual from his fellow men in this reputedly most enlightened and civilized of nations. They ask themselves if this, a nation of children and illiterates to need so much restraint.

A statistician, perhaps in saturation of the criminal code, computed statistics showing that a law-abiding citizen has 99 chances of arrest every 24 hours. There is more tragedy than jest, however, in the announcement of a bonding company that, because of the increasing threat of arrest, it would on an annual bond to be carried by the person to obtain the release of the holder in case of arrest.

It is feared by some that the American people are creating for themselves a tyranny of law, the yoke of which will eventually become as intolerable as a tyranny of man. And tyrants are more easily seated than dethroned.

The United States has a criminal class and it has a complex society that becomes more complex as the country grows in population. On the other hand it has a public school system and prides itself on its high standard of intelligence and morality. With this latter the swelling statutes seem incongruous.

The "Movie"

THOSE Americans who aspire to some degree of culture and who pride themselves on their appreciation of the best in music, drama and art are placed in a most embarrassing and confusing position by those superior intellects who seem to have consecrated their pens and tongues to the depreciation and condemnation of the movie.

After reading that the movies are trash, dishes out for the amusement of children and adults with child minds, men and women who patronize drama and enjoy tragedy for its ending sometimes go to the movie to satisfy themselves as to the truth of the charges of its critics or purely in the spirit of gambling on getting a surprise of good entertainment when they come out from the darkness within to the foyer

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, becomes cynical toward love when she gives up Mat Tully at her mother's request because he is poor. She encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy married man, who, enamored of Nancy, wishes to divorce his wife. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with a handsome ranger, Roger Decatur, leaving her chaparral, the rich Porters. Nancy, after a violent but brief courtship, secretly marries Roger. Her folks at home wonder at her continued absence.

"The first time you leave me I'll probably go home."

CHAPTER XIX.

ONCE Roger went out to hunt up some government official—something to do with his work—and left her alone. "I won't miss you a bit. I'll do a little illegal washing in the wash basin. Maybe I'll even darn a stocking!" she told him, laughing. But when he was gone and she dragged the suitcases out from under the bed, and poked and pushed through their rumpled contents, her high spirits cooled away. She didn't know where to start, there was so much to do. Louise had always done their mending and washing. She felt discouraged and helpless, surrounded by crumpled silks and sad looking linens. Even the coral cliffon dressing gown looked lumpy, and the French flowers on one satin mule were loose.

And the room was terrible. Sticky varnish on the dresser. None too clean lace curtains at the windows. "I wish we'd taken a chance and gone to the good hotel!" she moaned, but that was impossible, of course, with the Porters likely to turn up any minute. For that matter, she might run into Anita Beamer, staying at the palatial Riverside, where all the divorcees and everyone who was anyone stayed in Reno.

The Warning

Anita Beamer, here in Reno getting a divorce so that Jack could marry her, Nancy. "Poor Jack! How disappointed he would be when he knew that she had jilted him for a ranger. A poor ranger who didn't mind awful hotels, and didn't know the difference between new clothes and old. 'It's so funny!' she thought, giggling helplessly. She thought she was laughing, but her eyes were wet, so she must be crying instead. Roger found her, a wilted little heap beside the scattered clothes on the floor when he came back. "Don't leave me! Don't leave me again!" she wailed, and he lifted her in his strong arms and comforted her and laughed at her and they were both happy again.

"The first time you leave me all day I'll probably go home to mama!" she laughed, looking up at him adoringly with wet, velvety eyes.

"Oh, I guess not!" But it frightened him a little. He loved her more every day, but he realized that he didn't know her as well as he thought he did. She was so independent up there in the High Sierras, and now she was so soft and clinging. She sure cared a lot for me! He thought, half humbly, half exulting. "My Nancy!"

It was only when she was clinging that Nancy felt that she knew him at all. Sometimes, seeing him at a little distance or hearing him speak to some man about something she knew nothing about, he was a stranger. "That's my husband!" she wailed, half humbly, half exulting. "My Nancy!"

In the church where they were married he had looked so strange and unfamiliar, with his unruly hair, though they have been told, by those who claim to know, that the modern movie is cheap and vulgar and totally lacking in artistic qualities, they have been pleased by the picture and are compelled to draw the self-deceiving conclusion that they are deficient in the critical sense; that they are "low brow."

Despite criticism from home and abroad bearing the stamp of authority, the most cultured and artistic must admit that the American film represents perfection in photography, shows scenic discrimination of a high order, offers the best productions of the legitimate stage and is not always the best, then the most popular in literature.

Few statues are erected to men who couldn't make a decision without asking the wife.

It turns from the purple color to bright red. It goes from the lungs to the heart, clean and pure as the air breathed.

The purer the blood becomes by flowing through the lungs, the more vitality will a person have. For this reason everyone needs vigorous exercise to increase the lung capacity.

Many cases of lung disease and nose and throat troubles might be averted if more persons would learn the habit of deep breathing. A great deal can be done to improve the health by setting aside a few minutes every day to the practice of slow and deep breathing.

One of the best exercises in the world is walking. Everybody who is able-bodied can take a vigorous walk every day. This is the time to practice deep breathing.

If you live in the city, get out into the fresh air. There is an inexhaustible reservoir of air for all to breathe. The pure air of the hillsides or the invigorating sea air as often as you can.

Civilization is such that multitudes of people are herded together in close proximity. That is all the more reason why every morning, night and day, should be well ventilated. Let in the fresh air. There is an inexhaustible reservoir of air for all to breathe. It is only by man's ignorance of how he is made and how he should live, or by his neglect, that he keeps from living as near as possible to Nature as Nature intended he should.

POLICE GUARD AGAINST ACTION OF WASHINGTON COMMUNISTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—An extra force of policemen was stationed about the Capitol today to prevent a threatened invasion of the senate and house chambers by communist agitators.

The communists have threatened to invade the galleries and the floors to read their demands for grants of $15 a week to the unemployed.

The same elements staged a demonstration on the opening day of congress, Dec. 1, and tear bombs and pistol shots were necessary to disperse them.

Three of the policemen were stationed in front of Speaker Nick Longworth's office, with instructions not to permit the communists to enter. A meeting of the Republican steering committee was to be held there during the morning.

Capitol officials said the communists would be permitted to enter the public galleries of the house but that they would be ejected at the first signs of interruption or disorder. City policemen were placed among the spectators in the galleries, ready to curb any demonstration.

The guards outside the Capitol were given tear gas bombs "to use if necessary."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—Special guard today was thrown around the Capitol building of Oklahoma by order of Governor William H. Murray to prevent threatened mob violence in support of the Governor's own legislative program.

The proposal to stage a demonstration came after Murray threatened last week to organize an army of "common people" to go to the Capitol to demand relief measures sponsored by the Governor but opposed by the legislature. His statement met such wide appeal that he was forced to intercept a move that threatened to reach the point of violence on the part of the unemployed.

PITTSBURGH.—Forty motorcycle police and a detail of picked patrolmen armed with riot guns today were ordered to converge at Liberty avenue and Grant-st. announced scene of a communist rally.

Pat Cushman, self-styled head of the local communist organization, was denied a permit for the rally yesterday because of its interference with traffic movement.

Th leader told police he was chosen to head a delegation leaving for Washington to present unemployment pleas to congress. Cushman insisted that even without the granting of a police certificate the rally and demonstration would take place as planned.

TWO GUNMEN ARE CAUGHT

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Spirited here from Phoenix, Ariz., two asserted gunmen, alleged to have been implicated with Ralph Sheldon in the kidnaping of E. L. "Zeke" Caress, millionaire gambler and his wife on Dec. 20 and held for $50,000 ransom, were in custody here today.

Those arrested were Louis Franks, 45, said by police to be a Los Angeles rum running king and Ray Wagner, alias Jackson, 33, said to be a St. Louis gangster.

Wagner is suffering from a wound under the heart, said to have been received during a gun battle with Long Beach, Cal., police at the time of the kidnaping.

Sheldon was arrested shortly after the gun battle at Long Beach when Officer W. H. Waggoner was shot by the men who were reported to be on their way to a gambling ship anchored off the coast to cash a $50,000 check which they forced Caress to sign.

Caress and his wife were later released.

H. DILLEHAY IS NOW FREE

COLUMBUS, O.—After serving more than three years of a two-to-20-year sentence on a charge of forgery, Harry Dillehay, 42, passed through the gates of Ohio penitentiary here today a free man.

Dillehay's parole, recently granted by the Ohio board of clemency, became effective Tuesday morning and, after receiving the good wishes and congratulations of prison officials, with whom he had worked for most of his imprisonment, he boarded a bus for Coshocton, home of his daughter, who was married about a year ago.

Dillehay had been a trusty during the majority of his term and was an assistant clerk in the office of Walter J. Kohberger, secretary to the warden. Prison officials said they held Dillehay in the highest regard. He was admitted to the penitentiary on Dec. 27, 1927 from Tuscarawas-co.

"I'm certainly happy to be freed

and to get on the 'outside' again," was Dillehay's only comment on his release.

Penitentiary authorities revealed that Dillehay will visit his daughter until next Monday when he plans to return to Columbus to re-enter the insurance business. It was understood that he had taken an executive position with the Western & Southern Life Insurance Company.

Probably the person most concerned about the prisoner's leaving, next to Dillehay himself, was Walter Kohberger. He expressed genuine regret about losing "the best assistant I ever had," although he said he was extremely glad that Dillehay was a free man again.

Odd Civilizations

Excavations in Mexico and other parts of Central America have led scientists to believe that possibly there were extant in that part of the world civilizations older than China and similar nations. At Culeco, Mexico, excavations revealed a temple and some skeletons which indicated that it was probably constructed nearly 8,000 years ago.—Washington Star.

All over America these steps are being taken in the war against Unemployment

DO not think of unemployment in terms of millions of people out of work in this broad land of America.

Think of unemployment as a few people out of work within a stone's throw of you—your own neighbors. Maybe one, or maybe two out of every twenty in your vicinity. That, after all, is the unemployment problem.

Put those persons back to work and that ends the unemployment problem in your vicinity. Don't worry about other communities. They will take care of their problem in the same way . . . in fact are doing so, in every part of the United States.

The Government Is Doing Its Part

The Government is speeding up its program of public works, wherever this is possible. That means people are going back to work.

Communities Are Doing Their Part

Local governments are advancing projects, and hastening useful enterprises of every sort . . .

getting work started . . . now. That means people are going back to work.

Now What About You?

Now, for instance, is the time to make additions, improvements, repairs, to have odd jobs done around your home . . . to increase the worth of your property while materials are low priced . . . to increase the country's buying power . . . to give a neighbor a job.

Study the 100 suggestions that are listed here. Then get busy and give a neighbor a job.

Do this, and you are doing as patriotic a thing as any man can do. You are doing a constructive thing, a profitable thing, and a friendly thing.

YOU ARE GIVING WORK TO SOME ONE WHO IS READY TO GIVE YOU OUTSTANDING RETURN FOR YOUR INVESTMENT.

The only useful money is money at work. Put some of yours to work . . .

Insects' Mating Call
The sound made by katydids is produced by friction caused by the modified wing membranes which overlap the wing covers rubbing against one another. The chirping of crickets is produced by rubbing of a filelike ridge of one wing over a scraping surface of the other. Only the males have these organs, and it is generally agreed that the sound serves to call their mates.

One-Point Margin Again Defeats Tigers

Girls Continue Winning Streak

Coming out of a slump, to pull ahead of a lead of 28-22, in the last minutes of play, Miss Rains' Circleville high school girls had a close call at Westerville Tuesday evening, when they again managed to add another victim to their row of victories. The score was 31-29. Westerville opened the scoring and led throughout the game, and it looked as though the local lassies had met their Waterloo, but that old fight and determination to win certainly had something to do with this game, as it didn't look as though Circleville had any possible chance.

The game was fast from start to finish, and the girls from Westerville played good ball. During the first quarter neither team went very far, however, Westerville out-scored the Red and Black aggregation, and when the quarter ended the score was 9-5. Eldridge and Fitzpatrick accounted for the first five points for Circleville, and Freeman and Howe, two flashy Westerville girls, piled up nine points for their team.

The second quarter was also plenty fast and Miss Rains' girls had to work harder than they ever did to check the Westerville aggregation with a poison pass attack completed by Freeman who was a dead shot from the side of the floor. Fitzpatrick and Heskett had various difficulties in hitting the hoop, but were able to furnish several buckets in this quarter. Circleville's losses consisted of bad passes, which Westerville generally recovered and resulted in a score. When the half ended the Westerville lassies still held a lead of 20-17.

The Tigress machine came into the last half with much more vim and vigor and looked as though they might lunge ahead, nevertheless they were closely checked by Westerville guards and had quite a bit of trouble in scoring and not until the final minutes was the score boosted by Miss Rains' girls. Very little scoring was done by the Red and Black in the third quarter, however Westerville kept on piling up a lead, and when the quarter ended the score was 28-22. With only five minutes to go, the local girls began playing their regular game, and one bucket after the other was piled by Heskett and Fitzpatrick, until the score was tied 28-28. In the last minutes Heskett sunk a goal and Fitzpatrick a free throw to complete the scoring.

Heskett and Fitzpatrick were high scorers for Circleville and each scored 14 points, with Eldridge accounting for the remaining three points. Freeman and Howe led Westerville scoring.

QUINN'S ACQUISITION TO GIVE BROOKLYN CHANCE AT FLAG

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—"Jack Quinn now pitching for Brooklyn!"

If this announcement is flashed over the wires some fine afternoon during the world series this fall, the stage will be set for a gripping drama. And it is not improbably that the veteran spitball pitcher, signed by Brooklyn yesterday after being cut adrift by the Athletics last year, may face his former team mates in the 1931 post-season classic.

While the acquisition of old John Pius does not assure Brooklyn of the pennant by any manner of means, it has given the club added strength where it was most needed—in the box.

Dave Driscoll, business manager of the Robins, predicted today that National League batsmen will be winning the game when the gun sounds, 19-18.

The Tigers undoubtedly missed their scoring ace, Purcell, who left the game early in the first quarter with a bad ankle, however, the Red and Black aggregation played mighty fine ball, but just don't seem to have that thing called "LUCK."

Long of Purdue referred the game.

PROSPECTS OF HIGHER WHEAT PRICE DURING 1931 NOW LOW

WASHINGTON — Discouraging prospects for the marketing of the coming season's wheat crop confront the wheat growers, the Bureau of Agriculture Economists said today in its monthly survey of the agricultural situation.

Unless yields throughout the world should be materially below average, prices are likely to continue low, the survey said. World production has been increasing faster than consumption for some years and burdensome stocks have been piling up so that the world carry-over on July 1 next will again be abnormally large.

High tariffs and milling restrictions have reduced imports and consumption in many countries of continental Europe, and Russia has again become an important exporter. Financial pressure in importing countries is forcing wheat onto the world's markets, while the business depression and the general decline in commodity prices are also tending to aggravate the situation.

"At the present time, there is nothing to indicate any material change in the world acreage of wheat to be harvested in 1931, and thus far weather conditions have been generally favorable for the fall sown crop," the survey said.

"It is too early, however, to attempt to forecast yields."

With normal planting conditions in 1931 a moderate increase in corn acreage is to be expected.

Should average yields per acre be obtained on the expected larger

You Can't Skip a Step in the Building of PROSPERITY

PROSPERITY is built in three steps. The second cannot be reached before the first, nor the third before the second. Yet there is a large class in America that is trying to skip that first step. It is to this class that we appeal.

One-Point Margin Again Defeats Tigers

Girls Continue Winning Streak

Coming out of a slump, to pull ahead of a lead of 28-22, in the last minutes of play, Miss Rains' Circleville high school girls had a close call at Westerville Tuesday evening, when they again managed to add another victim to their row of victories. The score was 31-29. Westerville opened the scoring and led throughout the game, and it looked as though the local lassies had met their Waterloo, but that old fight and determination to win certainly had something to do with this game, as it didn't look as though Circleville had any possible chance.

The game was fast from start to finish, and the girls from Westerville played good ball. During the first quarter neither team went very far, however, Westerville out-scored the Red and Black aggregation, and when the quarter ended the score was 9-5. Eldridge and Fitzpatrick accounted for the first five points for Circleville, and Freeman and Howe, two, Miss Westerville girls, piled up five points for their team.

The second quarter was also plenty fast and Miss Rains' girls had to work harder than they ever did to check the Westerville aggregation with a poison pass attack completed by Freeman who was a dead shot from the side of the floor. Fitzpatrick and Heskett had various difficulties in hitting the hoop, but were able to furnish several buckets in this quarter. Circleville's losses consisted of bad passes, which Westerville generally recovered and resulted in a score. When the half ended the Westerville lassies still held a lead of 20-17.

The Tigress machine came into the last half with much more vim and vigor and looked as though they might lunge ahead, nevertheless they were closely checked by Westerville guards and had quite a bit of trouble in scoring and not until the final minutes was the score boosted by Miss Rains' girls. Very little scoring was done by the Red and Black in the third quarter, however Westerville kept on piling up a lead, and when the quarter ended the score was 28-22. With only five minutes to go, the local girls began playing their regular game, and one bucket after the other was piled by Heskett and Fitzpatrick, until the score was tied 28-28. In the last minutes Heskett sunk a goal and Fitzpatrick a free throw to complete the scoring.

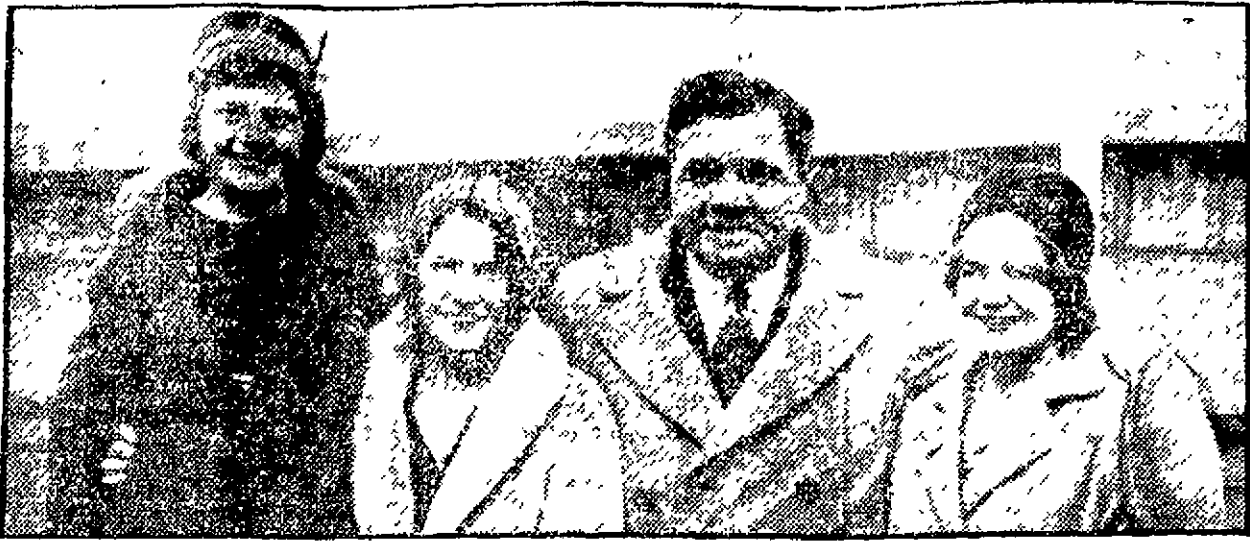

Heskett and Fitzpatrick were high scorers for Circleville and each scored 14 points, with Eldridge accounting for the remaining three points. Freeman and Howe led Westerville scoring.

QUINN'S ACQUISITION TO GIVE BROOKLYN CHANCE AT FLAG

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—"Jack Quinn now pitching for Brooklyn,"

If this announcement is flashed over the wires some fine afternoon during the world series this fall, the stage will be set for a gripping drama. And it is not improbable that the veteran spitball pitcher, signed by Brooklyn yesterday after being cut adrift by the Athletics last year, may face his former team mates in the 1931 post-season classic.

While the acquisition of old John Pius does not assure Brooklyn of the pennant by any manner of means, it has given the club added strength where it was most needed—in the box.

Dave Driscoll, business manager of the Robins, predicted today that National League batsmen will be winning the game when the gun sounds, 19-18.

The Tigers undoubtedly missed their scoring ace, Purcell, who left the game early in the first quarter with a bad ankle, however, the Red and Black aggregation played mighty fine ball, but just don't seem to have that thing called "LUCK."

Long of Purdue referred the game.

PROSPECTS OF HIGHER WHEAT PRICE DURING 1931 NOW LOW

WASHINGTON — Discouraging prospects for the marketing of the coming season's wheat crop confront the wheat growers, the Bureau of Agriculture Economics said today in its monthly survey of the agricultural situation.

Unless yields throughout the world should be materially below average, prices are likely to continue low, the survey said. World production has been increasing faster than consumption for some years and burdensome stocks have been piling up so that the world carry-over on July 1 next will again be abnormally large.

High tariffs and milling restrictions have reduced imports and consumption in many countries of continental Europe, and Russia has again become an important exporter. Financial pressure in important exporting countries is forcing wheat onto the world's markets, while the business depression and the general decline in commodity prices are also tending to aggravate the situation.

"At the present time there is nothing to indicate any material change in the world acreage of wheat to be harvested in 1931, and thus far weather conditions have been generally favorable for the fall sown crop," the survey said. "It is too early, however, to attempt to forecast yields."

With normal planting conditions in 1931 a moderate increase in corn acreage is to be expected.

Should average yields per acre be obtained on the expected larger acres, corn production this year would be slightly higher than average and it would be the largest crop since 1925.

Because of legislation limiting the scope of reports on cotton, the bureau did not forecast future prices of cotton.

The statement was made, however, that the outlook for credit to finance the production of the 1931 cotton crop appears less favorable than for any recent year.

Local lending agencies, in general, will not be able to extend the usual volume of new advances as a result of the reduced flow of income into agricultural communities during the last marketing season.

The numerous bank failures in many sections of the south have accentuated the unfavorable credit situation. The report said.

Insects' Mating Call

The sound made by katydids is produced by friction caused by the modified wing membranes which overlap the wing covers rubbing against one another. The chirping of crickets is produced by rubbing a filelike ridge of one wing over a scraping surface of the other. Only the males have these organs, and it is generally agreed that the sound serves to call their mates.

"This resolution is the first step of the wets in Ohio to try to get rid of the whole prohibition regime. They are pretending that what they want to do is merely to repeal the state amendment, but what they are trying to do is to get rid of the foundation.

"At the same time, they are asking a referendum in prosecution of which they can say that the enforcement law still remains. This is not fair. They ought to meet the whole issue."

Dr. McBride, interpreted the phrase "the whole issue" as meaning "a referendum on all state prohibition laws."

ITALIAN WOULD MAKE NATION'S DISH-SPAGHETTI-THING OF PAST

TURIN, Italy—Solemnly pronouncing a sentence of death upon spaghetti—Italy's staple food—as an insult to modern gastronomics, Turin has celebrated the opening of Italy's first "futuristic restaurant."

The sponsor of the place is a painter named Signor Filia. His object is to "kill the out-of-date palate traditions and prepare mankind for the synthetic chemical food of the future." He also believes that his restaurant will help pave the way "for the perhaps not far distant time when people will receive their nourishment by means of radio broadcasts."

Signor Filia calls his place "The Tavern of St. Palate." Its decorations are frankly futuristic, Filia having done them himself, and its food and methods of preparation even more so. The first rule for all diners in the place is their renunciation of spaghetti, as dear to the Italian palate as roast beef is to the English.

Filia and his "futuristic cooks" have found that food, as served to day, has no aesthetic appeal. Sauces, they declare, are like muddy pools, and no one has ever thought to give a joint of beef an "artistic appearance."

To make up for this deficiency, Filia has designed such dishes as the "Meaplastic," which is supposed to represent an Italian landscape, but which in reality is merely a cylinder of mince meat containing eleven different vegetables, the whole being mounted on a base of sausage.

REPORT SHIP IN DISTRESS

Mysterious S. O. S. Signals Are Picked Up; No Trace of Sender Is Found.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Three mysterious SOS signals intercepted by a channel steamer advising of a liner in distress 1,000 miles off the west Irish coast and carrying 300 passengers today puzzled maritime authorities.

French and British wireless stations immediately sought to communicate with the stricken vessel, but were unable to establish contact. The operator of the cross-channel steamer Engadine, who intercepted the distress calls, was unable to catch the name of the vessel, distinguishing only the last two letters "US."

The Engadine was enroute from Folkestone to Boulogne when she picked up the calls for help. Shipping companies and Radio stations failed to intercept the signals, and Lloyd's shipping offices also were without information.

Communication agencies, despite all efforts, were unable to corroborate and trace down the origin of the three SOS calls, leading them to suspect an ill-advised hoax on the part of an amateur radio operator.

ARGUMENTS FAVORING REPEAL OF DRY LAWS BEFORE GROUP

COLUMBUS, O. — Arguments favoring repeal of the prohibition amendment to the Ohio constitution will feature a hearing tonight before the House judiciary committee on the Nippert resolution which proposes that voters of the Buckeye state nullify this provision of the constitution at the polls next November.

This argument is to be submitted by Ralph Newman and Col. John A. Hughes, both of Cleveland, members of the Ohio Crusaders, an organization opposed to prohibition. Newman is executive secretary of the organization.

A resolution petitioning Congress to call a national constitutional convention primarily for repeal of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution was introduced in the House Monday night by Rep. Allen N. Corlett (R), of Cleveland. This resolution is similar to one introduced in the Senate by Senator L. L. Marshall (R), also of Cleveland.

Rep. Charles E. Justus, (D), of Columbus, offered a resolution providing for appointment of a committee of six senators to investigate the method of gasoline tax collection with a view to readjusting the portions allotted to the state, counties, municipalities and townships.

A request that Ohio members of Congress oppose any appropriation of funds to the federal department of justice for wire-tapping purposes by any of its agents, in connection with prohibition enforcement activities, is contained in a resolution pending in the House.

The resolution, offered by Rep. Lawrence A. Kane (R), of Cincinnati, also favors legislation which would make it a federal offense to tap telephone or telegraph wires.

Kane declared that, although Ohio laws specifically prohibit wire-tapping and provide fines ranging from $50 to $1,000 and imprisonment of from 1 to 3 years, or both, for violators, federal department of justice employees have been tapping wires in the Buckeye state in search for evidence, particularly in liquor cases.
